

The 17th NAJS Conference, 15-16 June 2023
European Institute of Japanese Studies,
Stockholm School of Economics

NAJS Conference Guidelines for Participation

At the annual NAJS Conference priority will be given to full papers that presenters regard as ready, or nearly ready to be submitted for publication. Less developed research ideas, projects and work in progress can also be presented. Please make sure to provide all the requested information and to answer all the questions when submitting your abstract.

Since it is a prerequisite for participants to read all papers presented at the conference beforehand, all papers should be sent in by the deadline stated in the Call for Papers and on the conference homepage. The papers will then be made available as PDF files so that they can be downloaded well ahead of the conference.

Format

Since the NAJS prioritizes discussion of and feedback on papers, no time will be given to the presenters to summarize their papers. The presenter is, however, allowed a maximum of five minutes to state what type of publication or audience he/she is aiming at and state special requests about the desired feedback. Thereafter two discussants will be given five minutes each to bring up the points most worthy of discussion in the paper. The presenter is then given five minutes to respond before the floor is opened for everyone to comment. The chair of the session should see to it that focus is on major issues rather than details and that the time limit is kept.

Length of the paper

Manuscripts of 7,000 to 10,000 words are preferred but shorter papers can also be presented.
