

The Stockholm School of Economics (SSE) is one of Europe's leading business schools. We have been ranked as the no. 1 business school in the Nordic and Baltic countries over ten years in a row by the Financial Times. Our Master programs are composed of students from all over the globe.

"Studying at SSE has been an enriching, transformational experience that would not be possible for me, without the generosity of the AFSSE award. SSE has provided me with a platform to launch my career, receive a world class education, build a robust international network, and gain a strong appreciation for Scandinavia culture. I will always remain deeply indebted to the members of the AFSSE for gifting me this unique opportunity to study in Sweden."

Daisy Garcia
AFSSE Scholarship Recipient

AMERICAN FRIENDS OF SSE SCHOLARSHIP

One scholarship is available for the academic year 2020/2021, exclusively for applicants from North America (citizens of the United States or Canada).

This scholarship fully covers the tuition fee for the MSc program. Funding for additional expenses, such as living costs, is not included in the scholarship. Deadline for the application is January 15.

FEES AND APPLICATION PROCESS

Tuition fee: SEK 150,000 (approximately USD 16,000) per year for two years.

SSE awards a number of scholarships that are funded by generous private donations. Scholarships are available on a competitive basis for students admitted to one of our five MSc programs. The scholarship application is submitted together with the program application.

All scholarship applications are assessed by a selection committee, taking into consideration the relevance and the quality of the personal motivation, academic excellence, relevant extracurricular activities, program cohort diversity and the distribution of scholarships across all programs.

SSE distributes scholarship offers to our best candidates by the middle of March. Visit www.hhs.se/studentscholarships to read more about our scholarships.