

Private traders and the role of emotions

Team:

Assistant Professor Emelie Fröberg, Center for Economic Statistics, SSE

Associate Professor Patric Andersson, Center for Economic Psychology, SSE

PhD candidate Martin Berlin, Swedish Institute for Social Research, Stockholm University

Period:

2016-2019

Funded by:

Handelsbanken Research Foundations, Grant No. P2016-0164:1, 1 million SEK

Summary:

The project aims to explore the role of emotions in decision-making and performance among private active traders (i.e. people that make investment decisions frequently and with their private capital). Methods are experience sampling, surveys, transaction data and market data on an individual level.
