

PhD ECONOMICS

The Stockholm School of Economics (SSE) is one of Europe's leading business schools. We have been ranked as the no.1 business school in the Nordic countries over fifteen years in a row by the Financial Times.

The PhD program in Economics at SSE combines the advantages of a small department with close and informal connections to faculty, with the breadth of courses and seminars associated with a larger department. A specially designed course program, the Stockholm Doctoral Course Program in Economics, Econometrics and Finance (SDPE), is organized by SSE jointly with Stockholm University for our PhD students in Economics and Finance.

PHD PROGRAM IN ECONOMICS

5 YEARS | 240 ECTS

The 240 ECTS credits of the program are divided into a course component (105 ECTS), and a dissertation component (135 ECTS). The core courses of the SDPE program (60 ECTS) are compulsory and should be completed in your first year of study. Mandatory courses cover mathematics, microeconomics, macroeconomics, and econometrics. In the second year you can choose from a large selection of elective courses (45 ECTS).

In the beginning of your second year of study, you find a subject field for your dissertation and decide on an SSE faculty member for your supervisor; you will be conducting dissertation research in your final two to three years. Research from SSE PhD dissertations is frequently published in leading journals, with the Review of Economics and Statistics and the Quarterly Journal of Economics as recent examples. Our graduates have landed a variety of jobs, including faculty jobs in international universities (e.g. Johns Hopkins University and NHH Norwegian School of Economics in Bergen), policy organizations (ECB and Bank of Italy), and the private sector (e.g. Spotify and Karma).

Teaching experience is an integral part of the PhD program in Economics, and you are strongly encouraged to do some teaching from the second year. Successful completion of teaching entitles you to a fifth year in the program, which is otherwise 4 years (240 ECTS).

Many PhD students spend one or two semesters visiting other leading universities in the US and Europe. SSE is also a member of the European Network for Training in Economic Research (ENTER) together with other prominent economics departments in Europe.
