

In this issue:

- Jessica Wachter on deregulation, climate disclosures, and crypto policy
- Announcing the 2025 Hans Dalborg Award winners
- The Future of Europe's Financial Markets: Highlights from SNS/SHoF Finance Panel
- European Commissioner Visit: Students Engage on Cross-Border Investment
- Save the Date: SHoF Annual Conference, September 18–20

Jessica Wachter on Deregulation, Climate Disclosures, and Crypto Policy

Jessica Wachter, former Chief Economist at the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, shared her insights on how a second Trump presidency could reshape financial regulation. Wachter discussed likely shifts in climate-related disclosures, cryptocurrency policy, and the broader deregulatory agenda.

- Trump 2.0 may shift focus from investor protection to competition.
- Crypto firms could see lighter enforcement, clearer rules.
- Climate disclosure rule faces rollback, risks fragmentation.
- Research remains key to effective regulation.

Read more

RESEARCH AND AWARDS

Announcing the 2025 Hans Dalborg Award Winners

The Hans Dalborg Awards recognize outstanding contributions to financial research. This year's winners are Alvin Chen (SHoF/ SSE) and Mustafa Nourallah (Mid Sweden University). Chen's research focuses on market microstructure and asset pricing, while Nourallah explores behavioral finance and investor behavior.

Read more

ARTICLES

The Future of Europe's Financial Markets

At the latest SNS/SHoF Finance Panel, experts debated the path forward for Europe's financial markets amid global competition, regulatory hurdles, and integration efforts.

Read more

Students Raise Strategic Questions to the European Commissioner

During a recent visit, students engaged with the European Commissioner on critical barriers to cross-border investment and finance across the EU.

Read more

UPCOMING EVENT

Save the Date: SHoF Annual Conference

European Conference on Household Finance coorganized by CEPR and SHoF 18-20 September 2025. The event will center around "Sustainable Household Finance". Mark the date!

Keynote speakers:

Caroline Flammer, Professor of Economics, Columbia University

Michael Greenstone, Professor of Economics, University of Chicago

IN THE PRESS

Interest Rates, Loans, and Funds: Economic Concerns in Focus

2025-04-08 • Swedish • Sveriges Radio

Bo Becker (SHoF/SSE) discusses how rising interest rates and market volatility are shaping concerns among borrowers and investors.

Ingves Warns Against Financial Nationalism

2025-04-01 • Swedish • Dagens Industri

Former Riksbank Governor Stefan Ingves (SHoF) warns of growing financial nationalism and its risks for European integration. The SNS/SHoF Finance Panel discussion is referenced.

Sweden's Climate Tech Ambitions at Risk

2025-03-27 • International • Sifted

Christian Thomann (SHoF/KTH) and Gustav Martinsson (SHoF/SU) weigh in on how government funding challenges could derail Sweden's leadership in climate tech innovation.

SWEDISH HOUSE OF FINANCE

The Swedish House of Finance (SHoF) is Sweden's national research center in financial economics. SHoF is a nonprofit, nonpartisan organization.